AT WASHINGTON CITY.

THE BODY OF THE LATE PRESIDENT LYING IN STATE—THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE VIEW THE REMAINS.

Scenes at the Capitol—President Arthur takes the Oath a Second Time—Items of Interest! Etc. Etc. Etc.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—From 8 o'clock the crowd continuously increased and been passing the bier at the rate of sixty each minute. At 11 o'clock there was a dense mass of people in front of the [illegible] steps on the east front, extending two squares [illegible] East Capitol street. People are flocking to the [illegible] Every incoming train upon the several railroads is heavily freighted with those coming to testify their profound sorrow at the nation's bereavement. Four very elaborate and exquisitely beautiful floral pieces, received from the White House, have been placed at the head of the bier. Other floral tributes have also been received and placed about the catafalque. The body will be in state until Friday noon, when seats will be placed in the rotunda for those who will be admitted to attend the funeral services, which will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Frederick Power, pastor of the deceased president, will officiate. The space will accommodate about 1500 people, and only that number of tickets will be issued.

The President's Remains moved to the Capitol.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—After leaving the train, the funeral cortege then followed the hearse, [illegible] on either side by a line of army and navy officers, among them being General Sherman and [illegible] Meigs, Sackett, Poe, Dodge, Ruggles, [illegible] and Beck, Col. Barr and about 50 [illegible] and Rear-Admiral Nichols, Commodores [illegible] and Sickard, Pay Director Tooker, Captain [illegible] and Captain C. H. Wells, Commanders Howell, [illegible], Rowison, Law, Lieuts. Schroeder, Belknap, [illegible], Bartlett, Stockton and Shree, and [illegible] of the navy. After the hearse came [illegible] of President Arthur, with mounted police [illegible] either side, and following it half a dozen carriages with members of the cabinet and [illegible] accompanied the remains from Elberon. A platoon of mounted police brought up the [illegible] muffled drums and a solemn funeral [illegible]. The funeral procession moved slowly up [illegible]. A mass lined the sidewalks all [illegible] street to the east front of the capitol, [illegible] this portion of the route the crowd [illegible] as great as upon the occasion of the [illegible] inaugural procession. As the procession [illegible] the avenue scarcely a sound was [illegible] from the feet of moving men and [illegible] were removed and heads bowed as by [illegible] of deep and unfeigned grief, as [illegible] moved on toward the capitol. Here [illegible] a vast assemblage had congregated [illegible] the funeral cortege. At the foot of the [illegible] file of senators and representatives, [illegible] by their respective officers waiting [illegible] to escort the remains into the [illegible]. At precisely 5:10 the head of the procession [illegible] the south side, arrived at the [illegible] of the capitol, the arms of the military [illegible] and the bands playing the dead [illegible]. The order was then given to carry, [illegible] troops came to the front while [illegible] of drums, the hearse and its attendant [illegible] of carriages drew slowly up in front. [illegible] A hush came over the multitude, [illegible] reverently uncovered as the coffin [illegible] lifted from the hearse. The officers [illegible] drew up in parallel lines on [illegible] of the hearse, and the Marine Band [illegible]. The dome of the capitol was illuminated, [illegible] light falling upon the drapings of [illegible], and upon the still faces of the dead [illegible] to heighten the solemnity of the [illegible].

Viewing the Remains.

[illegible]—The remains of President Garfield, up [illegible] have been viewed by 25,000 persons. [illegible] a steady stream of humanity [illegible] the Capitol building to take a last [illegible] 5000 to 6000 people are now in two lines [illegible] front of the Capitol for a long distance [illegible], and are passing through the east [illegible], one on either side of the remains [illegible] through the west door at the rate of [illegible] per hour. Among those who took a last [illegible] of the dead president this morning [illegible] sisters of charity, and several [illegible] orphans from St. Vincent's and [illegible] asylums. Many persons from [illegible] Philadelphia have arrived to view [illegible].

Arthur's First Proclamation.

The following proclamation was issued by the [illegible] of the United States:

[illegible] in His inscrutable wisdom it has [illegible] to remove from us the illustrious head [illegible] James A. A murderer has been convicted in Chicago, and recommended to be hanged. However, this does not indicate that he will be hanged—if he has any money.

The governor of Missouri has issued the customary weekly proclamation regarding train robbers, but unfortunately many of the gentlemen for whose benefit it is intended cannot read.

The Nashville American estimates the shortage in the cotton crop at between one and two millions of bales. If that estimate be correct there must be an advance in price and a falling off in exports.

"Bryant's character," says the Spectator, "was more weighty than his genius, but as a poet he was fortunate in being born before the poetical literature of his country had any well-defined existence."

A Kentucky paper says: "We pay nothing for the air we breathe, but we are taxed for the water we drink." The amount realized from this source in Kentucky must be upwards of $2, if the tax is honestly collected.

The brewers of Cincinnati have marshaled their forces for the fall political campaign, and announce that they "will support the candidates of any party which defends them." They are supporting the democratic ticket.

Scene: Bridal reception. Several of the guests, after shaking hands with the bride, and all speaking at the same time: "Where is the bridegroom?" Bride, naively: "Oh, he's up stairs watching the wedding presents."

Charles Bolles of Minneapolis, undertook to kill a dog with a revolver, but the weapon did not discharge. He became furious and aimed at his wife, and still the deadly implement hung fire. When he turned the muzzle upon the spot where his brains ought to be he met with splendid success, saving the county the cost of a day's work.

Some time ago the Reno Gazette announced: "Charles T. Bender offers a special premium to the lady exhibiting a baby that most resembles him." There must have been some trouble about this announcement, for now the Gazette corrects itself as follows: "Ten dollars to the lady exhibiting a child most resembling her."

The exportation of American oysters is a business of no mean proportions, as may be seen from the returns of the receipts in England mainly at Liverpool, last season. From the 5th of October, 1880 to the 2d of May, 1881, over 70,000 barrels, containing over 00,000,000 oysters, were sent to England from New York. The business is expected to grow.

The buildings now in course of construction in New York include a $300,000 opera house on Broadway; a hotel on Madison avenue, near Fifty-eighth street, to cost $250,000; an apartment house on Twenty-fifth street, requiring the disbursement of $110,600; and an eight-story French flat on Twenty-third street, on which $400,000 will be expended.

A young couple have just begun housekeeping and wish to engage a maid-of-all-work. Josephine presents herself. After detailing the duties required, the lady of the house remarks: "Well, my good girl, I think you will be suited; the work is light and we have no children." Josephine (with a gracious smirk): "Oh, madam, do not put yourself out on my account, I beg. I adore them."

THE UPPER WILLAPA VALLEY.

WILLAPA, Pacific Co., W. T., Sept. 9, 1881.

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

With your leave, I wish to correct a few errors which your correspondent, A. H., has made in regard to the upper Willapa valley, in his letters from South Bend and North Cove.

His delineations of Shoalwater Bay and the lower Willapa, which he visited in person, are graphic and mainly correct but of the region above tidewater which he "only heard of," I wish to make a few statements.

This upper valley, commencing at Woodward's landing, which is ten miles above South Bend, is twenty miles long, and of an average breadth of a mile of level, arable land.

Hundreds of acres of this is maple and cottonwood bottoms, which will not cost over twenty to thirty dollars per acre to clear, and when cleared, will produce three to four tons of hay to the acre, and is unsurpassed for all kinds of vegetables. It is too rich for grain, as it lodges badly.

Something over half the valley is upland, timbered with spruce, fir, cedar, alder, vine and soft maple, which, though harder to clear than the lower bottoms, will not cost near as much as those lower down mentioned by A. H. The prairies, of which there are 3000 to 4000 acres, are mostly of this grade and are generally first class land, better for grain than the bottoms.

They are all taken up, though the German colony of Aurora does not own over 3 0acres of prairie land and of these not over 200 are idle and unproductive, as there are two tenants on their lands.

Their places are all for sale. One of them was sold recently at less than ten dollars per acre. It is good, rich land, one-half under cultivation, with a large orchard and comfortable buildings, though six miles from tide water.

Although grain does well here, dairying is the best business, as our cool climate, evergreen pastures and prodigious crops of hay, turnips, carrots, mangel wurzels, make this one of the best dairy regions in the world.

There is one cow on record here that produced two pounds of butter daily during two months, and there are plenty that give one per day, that have no other feed than grass.

Three-fourths of the land is vacant after you get six or seven miles from tide water, though these townships are unsurveyed. The odd sections are all railroad land.

The hills here are well timbered with good logging timber but the lower valley has been burnt and logged pretty well off. We are not entirely an aquatic people, as we have wagons, horses, reapers and threshers. Our roads are not very good as we have but a sparse population and the river is tortuous, crossing the valley from the hills on one side to the other often, so it has to be crossed or go over the hills. There is a passable wagon road for sixteen miles above the landing.

The steamers South Bend and Gen. Garfield each make regular trips down the river and across the bay twice a week.

The Methodists have had a circuit on the bay and its tributaries for about ten years. T. M. Reese was preacher in charge this last season, living at Bay Center and preaching regularly there and at Oysterville, South Bend and Woodard's landing.

The conference has not supplied us with a pastor as yet this season.

OCEAN FREIGHTS.

How the Pacific Slope Farmer Permits Himself to be Skinned.

[illegible] Fran[illegible] Chronicle Sept. [illegible]

[illegible] the Pacific coast that the American Samson is shorn of his strength than has become the [illegible] of monopolists. When the farmers' grievances are complained of in the east, except he gain a [illegible] forte, it is well known that the farmers do not derive anything [illegible] the same [illegible] advantages from the general [illegible] staple of the Pacific slope farmer are very fortunately, as one would suppose, on the ocean highway. But strangely enough, while the eastern farmer is at the mercy of exclusive land, the Pacific farmer has most extensive [illegible] by sea. If Uncle Sam should impose an export duty of a cent on ton wheat it would be regarded as a terrible blow to the chief industry of the Pacific slope, and yet it would but feebly express what the farmer has suffered during the last twelve months, and what it is now proposed to subject him to during the present season. An export duty, if it did not fall to some extent on the foreign consumer, would at least do nothing to lessen the supply of tonnage. But allow a few men to rule the freight market and self-interest naturally prompts them to exact the largest tribute from the farmer, and with the view of perpetuating their reign, to limit the quantity of shipping. This freight monopoly not only impoverishes the farmer, but it does the export miller, and has a blighting effect on the general prosperity of the coast.

The most remarkable circumstance connected with our ocean freight monopoly is that, with a tenacity unknown in the eastern states, it always places itself completely at the mercy of the farmer. This corner in freights is nothing more nor less than a "shorting" of the wheat surplus of the Pacific coast. Yet this operation, although one of the most reckless that can possibly be attempted, has been so long tolerated by the farmer that it is now undertaken without the slightest apprehension of danger and with a confidence which is born only of a long series of unbroken successes. To fix the relative price of wheat before it is even reaped is common enough among the bulls and bears of Chicago; but to sell, in effect, the entire surplus in advance at a terrible sacrifice to the farmer, and without making him a party to the transaction, is peculiar only to the Pacific coast. The tonnage now in sight, and that which will inevitably follow, to carry away what will remain this month of the entire wheat surplus of this state, are intrinsically worth no more and considerably less worth much less, than what the majority of ship-owners are willing to accept. In placing, therefore, an exorbitant valuation on his tonnage the freight gambler lays himself entirely at the mercy of the farmer, who, instead of meekly accepting ridiculously low prices for his wheat, may at any time insist on the high figures he was accustomed to before the present method of freight speculation was invented. Owing to the extraordinary forbearance and docility of the Pacific granger, speculation, instead of being on his side, as in the eastern states, is a most invariably against him, and, instead of being the terror, he has become a favorite mark for the monopolist.

The fact that the freight question this season was from the beginning substantially settled in favor of the farmer has made no difference whatever to the freight speculator, who still continues to exact his $5 per ton with the most delightful nonchalance. The small addition of from 200,000 to 300,000 tons register to the list of vessels on the way is now all that is necessary to enable the entire wheat surplus to be exported within the season. The great danger is that a much larger quantity may be sent this way, despite the efforts of the monopoly, which to sustain itself is naturally making use of every possible maneuver to limit the supply after January. But whether there be an over or an under supply of tonnage next spring, the result is certain to be a loss to the farmer so long as he continues to support the monopoly. The manipulator carefully watches the turn of the tide, and by dexterously transferring his interest from ship to wheat, collects the $5 per ton directly from the ship owner, but equally from the producer of the farmer, who in the following season is once more confronted by a small supply of tonnage, and again allows himself to be bound hand and foot by the monopoly. A spot freight of £4 and upwards is no real encouragement to the ship owner, as it very seldom reaches him, while a freight of £1 1s. when it does occur, is not even a temporary benefit to the farmer, whose wheat by that time has gone into the hands of speculators. The safety and interest of the farmer lie only in the open freight market, and this can be best secured by putting his foot down on all tonnage speculations. The most effective way to do this is never to submit to an export ocean rate and by being always prepared to pay a fair one.

SIMPLE FAITH.

If one could hear his mother's voice again,
And stand beside his mother's knee again,
And be again a child,
Simple and mild,
Absorbing faith as earth receives the rain;
Thus only could he shake the feeling off
That he has learned too much or not enough.

Cold is the air of reason, though serene;
Chill and unsatisfying, though serene.
Better for life and death
Were simple faith.
That simple evidence of things unseen;
that we have eaten the forbidden fruit,
Nor knew the tree was rotten at the root.

Safe Robbery.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22.—The safe of the county was robbed Sunday night of $8500. The doors were found unlocked in the morning. No clue to the robbers. Treasurer McLane has notified his bondsmen of his readiness to surrender all his property to them.

A Justice on his Muscle.

J. D. Connolly, the justice of the peace, who has recently made himself so notorious by his hoodlum proclivities, last night went to his house, which was in charge of the sheriff's keeper on account of a levy on the furniture, drove the keeper out, firing one shot at him without effect, and fired three ineffectual shots at a policeman, who attempted to arrest him. He was finally shot through the arm and arrested and locked up. He was in liquor at the time.

Approach of Winter.

Last evening a few scattering drops of rain fell. After midnight there were several brisk showers and to-day the sky is overcast, and the feeling of the atmosphere indicates more rain. There has been something of a wintry tinge in the air for a week or two, and sportsmen say that the movements of migratory game indicates an early winter.

Guiteau Hung in Effigy.

An effigy of Guiteau was found hanging in Clay street this morning.

Rains in California.

Dispatches from the interior report a general light rain last night. This morning it is extending over the northern part of the state and as far south as San Benito county, so far as heard from.

Shooting at Mokelumne Hill.

MOKELUMNE HILL, Sept. 21.—In a shooting affray this morning, Romualdo Cano shot James Flynn of Monterey county. Flynn died this morning at 4 o'clock.

Sacramento Fair.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 21.—The fair is a continued success with excellent attendance at the races.

The first race was running, between Forest King, Sunday and Duchess of Norfolk, all foals of 1879. It was a mile dash with positions as above. Duchess carried fifty pounds extra as winner of former three-quarter dash. Duchess took the pole and kept the lead to the end. King a good second. Time 1:46.

Second dash was for running stake free for all, mile dash, between Jennie G., Bonnie Jean and Armada Howard. They went in that position and Jennie won easily. Jean 2d. Time 1:46.

The next race was running, mile heats, between the fillies Winifred and Norris. The former having the pole won easily in 1:47½ and 1:49½.

The running race between Clara D. and Jim Brown for 1½ mile, was a one race and excited great interest. Brown sold the favorite at $140 to $120. Clara D. led from the start by half a length and kept it under a steady pull, winning in 3:07½.

The next was a trot, 2:30 class for $1000, between Blackmore, Wm. Tell, Tom Stout, Empress, Starr King, Susie and Hancock, who went in that order. Empress was favorite. After many efforts a send-off was had, Stout led, Empress 2d, Tell 3d. King won the heat, Stout 2d, Empress 3d. Time 2:29½. Empress took the second heat, King 2d, and Stout 3d. Time 2:28¼. The third heat created great excitement. Empress led to the last turn when all four were nearly abreast. King on the home stretch forged to the front and took the heat by a neck, Stout 2d, Empress 3d. Time 2:2[illegible].

Starr King won the fourth heat, Stout 2d, Empress 3d, and Susie 4th.

The judges did not announce any time, outsiders making it 2:32.

ARIZONA.

The Apache Campaign.

TUCSON, Sept. 21.—A dispatch from Camp Thomas says that Tiffany, agent at San Carlos, reports that Chiezo, Sanchez, Natchotilly, Eskelowindeschi and the brother of the medicine man killed by Carr's command, have come into the agency and agreed to surrender to the military unconditionally and ask for a trial by a commission for themselves and their bands. The reports late last night contradict the first reports about Major Sanford and command having a fight with the Indians. Nothing has been heard from Sanford himself and nothing from Gen. Carr's command or Capt. McClellan's. Lieut. Col. Price's troops are expected to be near Cibuco. Lieut. Kerr and company reached Fort Apache last evening. Company K, 8th infantry, Major Worth commander, is expected here to-morrow. A party of hostiles, numbering about ninety are said to have left Cibuco creek and are on Black river near the crossing of the Apache and San Carlos trails.

Agent Tiffany's Account.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—A dispatch from Tucson, Arizona, says a special to the Citizen from San Carlos announces that Col. Tiffany, Indian agent of that reservation, has forwarded his report to Washington. Tiffany's account of the troubles differ but little from the reports previously telegraphed as to the causes that led the White mountain Indians on the warpath. However, Tiffany advances some new points. He says the Indians were dissatisfied for some time past at being refused arms and ammunition from the reservation, and had their tempers inflamed by mean white people who told them the whites would take their lands and drive them off their coal fields. The agent heard Oury, the new delegate to congress, make a speech last fall, in which he (Oury) promised his efforts to drive the Indians off the reservation and give the land to prospectors and settlers. These things had their effect, and as the boundary was not well defined, making it difficult for the agent to locate a crooked boundary line 70 miles long, it was a great injury to whites and Indians, as it was difficult to tell the boundary. By an expenditure of a little money in defining the boundary, thousands of dollars and many lives would be saved. Everything about the agency is well managed and every effort is being made to aid the military authorities.

FROM ASTORIA.

How the News of the Death of the President was Received—Stranded Bark Rival.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA, Sept. 21, 1881.

The news of the president's death, although not unexpected, came like a shock upon the community early yesterday morning. The national ensign was soon raised to half mast on every available flagstaff in the city and from every vessel in the harbor, home and foreign. No other outward demonstrations were made, as it was naturally supposed and expected that at an early day would be announced for general and national memorial services. The mayor and city councilmen, at a called meeting, held this evening passed resolutions appropriate to the sad and mournful event, and calling upon the citizens of Astoria to drape in mourning, close their places of business and to unite in attending religious memorial services at their various places of worship, on Monday next the day designated for the interment of the body of our lamented and beloved president, James A. Garfield. A recommendation which will undoubtedly be strictly observed, as indeed it ought to be.

We yesterday paid a visit to the stranded bark Rival, which went ashore on Saturday last. The vessel lies as easy and upright in the sands of the beach as if she were in a dry dock. Captain Adams, who had command of the vessel until the bar pilot took charge, has pitched his camp ashore and with his crew was busily engaged in removing the sails and transferable property from the ship. What will be done with the hull and cargo—hay and shingles—depends upon her owners to whom Capt. Adams has telegraphed for instructions. The bark lies easy, bows on to the sea, and to an inexperienced eye it would seem no difficult matter to get her again afloat. Capt. Adams gave expression in very warm terms to your correspondent of the universal kindness extended to him and to Mrs. Adams, and also to his officers and crew, by all the residents of Fort Canby, and particularly by Capt. Anderson, the light-keeper, and his assistants, and Capt. Al Harris of the life-saving station. In this connection he was also anxious that public acknowledgment should be made of the fact that when his ship was aground and surrounded by heavy breakers insomuch that, having a life boat on board he deemed it necessary and prudent to lower it to save their lives, they had not more than got into it and pushed off from the ship, before Capt. Harris with his life boat and a volunteer crew appeared on the scene prepared to rescue them from their perilous position; and there is little doubt that but for the slight delay necessary in procuring a volunteer crew, the life-saving station boat would have been alongside before Capt. Adams took to his own boat.

Freedom of Exchange.

[David A. Wells.]

The highest right of property is the right to freely exchange it for other property. Any system of laws which denies or restricts this right, for the purpose of subserving private or class interests, reaffirms in effect the principle of slavery. Whatever facilitates or cheapens the interchange of commodities or services—good roads, the locomotive, the steamship, or the telegraph—promotes abundance, and consequently the aggregate of human comfort and happiness. Whatever, on the other hand, restricts or makes costly the exchange of commodities or services—be it in the nature of bad roads, high mountains, tempestuous oceans, swamps, deserts or restrictive laws—increases scarcity, and consequently the aggregate of human poverty and discomfort.

GEN. ARTHUR AND HIS FRIENDS.

Talk about the Cabinet Policy of the new President.

Senator [illegible] Cameron [illegible] of New York [illegible] regarding the course [illegible] Gen. Arthur [illegible] president [illegible].

[illegible]

"Well, [illegible] I wouldn't care [illegible]. The selection of a cabinet is always [illegible] and the men are two [illegible]; I can only say that if I were making it [illegible] Mr. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, and Senator Howe, of Wisconsin, would be members of it. I think, too, Mr. Windom would be a strong man and give general satisfaction."

Ex-Senator Platt, of New York, after condemning the indelicacy of discussing such a subject, was nevertheless drawn out in making the following suggestions as to possible cabinet arrangements. His interview reads thus:

"It has been suggested that Gen. Arthur would offer to retain the present cabinet."

"Well, all that I know is nothing. If he should be president he would begin with a terrible task before him. He would be held responsible for every trivial act. It would have a harder row to hoe than any preceding president and it would hardly be fair to expect him to assume that burden of duty unless he could be surrounded by advisers whom he himself selected, approved and confided in. These are my views of that. I am giving you my ideas only, but I should think Gen. Arthur would prefer to select his own cabinet."

"But wouldn't a change cause trouble?"

"I can't see how or why."

"Not [illegible] Mr. Windom should retire?"

"Not in the least. If Mr. Windom had been in the treasury department a long time and was associated with any great and important measure, it might give temporary embarrassment, but such is not the case. We are a peculiar people. If the president, vice-president and the whole cabinet were to die this moment the machine would move on without the slightest interruption. Individuals are of very little consequence."

"Have the names of Frelinghuysen and Howe been canvassed at all?"

"I do not know. I can only say that if those gentlemen were in any cabinet they would be heartily applauded by all good men."

"In the event of Gen. Arthur's succession would Gen. Grant be willing to serve?"

"Gen. Grant would be, as he always has been, at the service of his country, his party, and his friends. He would do anything to help either and all."

"If the state department were tendered to Mr. Conkling would he take it?"

"I could not answer that. It is absolutely impossible to make estimates without sufficient data."

"But Mr. Blaine has said he should resign, and insist on the acceptance [illegible] President Garfield died."

"So I have understood."

"In that event no man could be found if Mr. Conkling accepted?"

"Certainly not; but you are assuming your data. I don't care to go further into that subject."

On these utterances the Chicago Tribune comments as follows:

"The opinions of ex-Senator Platt are only significant because he is intimately associated with the particular set of politicians who have been attached to the interests of Mr. Conkling. One or two of the so-called 'stalwart' newspapers have carped at the occasional discussion of Gen. Arthur's policy in case he should be called to the presidency by the death of President Garfield, but the remarks made by Mr. Platt, who is one of Gen. Arthur's nearest political associates, go to show that Gen. Arthur's possible future as president has been very seriously considered by his friends, and it is not at all strange that the general public should exercise the same privilege.

"Mr. Platt is reported as saying that Gen. Arthur is 'a level-headed, educated New York gentleman, of peculiarly great experience with men, honest, faithful and sensitive to a fault,' and that 'if he were called to a higher duty the people would find in him a chief magistrate whom no clique would control.' All this would be more reassuring if it came from a man who had not been so thoroughly identified with the clique as Mr. Platt has been. At the same time there is no doubt that public confidence in Gen. Arthur has notably increased by reason of the admirable discretion he has shown in the very trying crisis precipitated by the assault on the president, and the testimony of all who have personally known him is always of the same flattering character as that given by Mr. Platt. It is a pity that the latter proceeded further than this, and practically foreshadowed material changes in the cabinet in the event of President Garfield's death. The public cares nothing for that peculiar character [illegible] the retention or dismissal of the material part of the present cabinet in case of Arthur's succession, would be regarded as the key-note of his policy. The universal confidence in the present cabinet as a whole is not merely by the fact that it was Garfield's choice and all great distinguished successes from the outset, but because it has developed a remarkable capacity for executive government during the president's protracted illness. The present cabinet is a representative of all the better elements of the republican party, including strong friends of Gen. Arthur, Gen. Grant and Mr. Conkling, and its continuance in power so long as there shall be no reason for individual changes will be an assurance of a faithful adherence to President Garfield's general policy which has proved so triumphant.

"It is very evident, however, that Mr. Platt contemplates radical cabinet changes in case Gen. Arthur shall become president. Platt says that Arthur would be held responsible for every trivial act, and that 'it would hardly be fair to expect him to assume that burden of duty unless he should be surrounded by advisers whom he himself selected, approved, and confided in.' And he added: 'I should think Gen. Arthur would prefer to select his own cabinet.' One or two other remarks were made by Platt which seem to have a pointed bearing on this matter. He thought Mr. Windom's retirement would occasion no disturbance. 'If Mr. Windom,' he said, 'had been in the treasury department a long time and was associated with any great and important measure, it might give temporary embarrassment, but such is not the case.' This was certainly a very strange answer to refer to a secretary of the treasury whose name is identified with one of the greatest successes of government financiering, which has inspired the business interest of the country with abiding confidence. It would seem to point to the selection of some New York man, as suggested the other day by Jay Gould. Certainly Gen. Arthur could not inaugurate his administration so unfortunately as by such a change as that if he were to be called to the presidency. Mr. Platt also went on to say that Gen. Grant 'would be, as he always has been, at the service of his country, his party, and his friends,' and that 'no man could be found' if Mr. Conkling were to accept the state department in case Mr. Blaine resigned.

"It is very evident from Mr. Platt's talk that Gen. Arthur will be in more danger from his friends, in case he shall become president, than from those who have been classed as his opponents in the republican party. He is, according to all accounts, a man of warm personal attachments. The part he took in the Conkling fight at Albany, though his position as vice president of the United States should have kept him out of it, was an evidence of this characteristic. But his friends, if Mr. Platt fairly represents them, are apparently disposed to urge a position upon him which, though it may be of advantage to them, would obviously diminish public confidence at the outset of an administration that ought to be as nearly as possible a continuation of Garfield's administration. Gen. Arthur ought not to ignore Gen. Grant's experience, whose pretentious friends were the people who put upon his administration all the scandals incident thereto, brought great embarrassment to him, and subsequently destroyed him into a candidacy for a third term which was sure to be vetoed by public opinion. So long as Gen. Arthur's friends, or some of them, count upon him as a tool for them from their selfish point of view, in case he shall become president, it is proper that public opinion should combat them and seek to save him from the trouble which they would make for him if they could have their way."

EUCALYPTUS.

Eucalyptus has of late years been found very useful for a great number of the ills that flesh is heir to. Its latest application is in the shape of Slaven's California Pine and Eucalyptus Porous Plaster, an article which is possessed of such merit, and is fast superseding the old pitch and frankincense plaster. It is endorsed by the medical profession throughout the Pacific. For sale by Woodard, Clarke & Co., Portland, Oregon.

NOTES FROM ALASKA.

Shipping Notes—Development of the Mines—Election of a Delegate to Congress—[illegible]

[illegible], Sept. 21.—The Los Angeles arrived [illegible] 21st yesterday evening bringing the following news from the north:

The steamer [illegible] left [illegible] on the 15th inst.

The Los Angeles brings [illegible] She arrived at Sitka on the [illegible] inst.

The United States steamer Wachusett [illegible] returned from a [illegible] days' cruise, having visited [illegible], Hoonyah and [illegible]. [illegible] to investigate the murder of [illegible] who was killed last summer by the Indians [illegible].

The United States steamer Hassler arrived at Sitka on the 9th inst., having been engaged in surveying [illegible]. She was to have left to return [illegible] on the 20th inst.

The mines at Harrisburgh are working well [illegible] placer mines have suffered lately for want of water. On the 4th inst., however, a heavy rain set in giving an abundance of water. The mines are yielding well. Several new discoveries have been made.

The Morris tunnel, owned by Wm. Murray, has sunk a shaft 30 feet and the rock taken out holds better than any yet discovered. Mr. Murray has shipped by the Los Angeles, two of this ore to be assayed in San Francisco. Many of the miners are busy working on their ledges.

The Los Angeles brings about $5000 in gold dust from Harrisburgh. Business is lively and everybody hopeful.

The election which took place on Sept. 5th to elect a delegate to the forty-seventh congress resulted in the election of Col. M. D. Ball over Major M. [illegible], by a large majority. Col. Ball leaves for Washington on the next steamer.

Captain Henry Glass, formerly of the Jamestown, is to return to Sitka to take command of the U. S. steamer Wachusett. Much satisfaction is expressed by the citizens of southeastern Alaska at his appointment to his post, as they feel well satisfied that Captain Glass is the right man in the right place.

Many new buildings have been erected at Harrisburgh.

The Los Angeles called in at Klawack and took on three hundred barrels of salmon, consigned to the N. P. T. & S. Co. of San Francisco.

The Indians are all quiet and well behaved at this place.

The weather for the last two months has been fine.

Among the passengers per the Los Angeles is Mrs. A. P. McFarland, the lady missionary who has done so much towards civilizing the natives of Alaska.

The Los Angeles sails from Nanaimo at 8 [illegible] morning for San Francisco via Port Townsend.

PORT TOWNSEND, Sept. 22.—The steamship Los Angeles arrived last night from Alaska.

The United States steamer Hassler reached Sitka on the 9th inst. from Cordova bay in a general surveying cruise. All well on board. She will go down the coast on the 12th inst. Commander [illegible] has had an investigation into the murder of [illegible] Camp, and Thomas Maloney still awaits his [illegible], and will probably sail in the spring for [illegible] place to try and capture the murderer, a [illegible] bay Indian.

Stephan and Vanderbilt, joint managers of the Northwest Trading Co., have fitted up a commodious store on the wharf at Sitka for merchandise and Indian curiosities.

Major Wm. Gouverneur Morris, the new collector of customs, was heartily welcomed on his arrival at Sitka.

J. T. Treadwell, who represents a San Francisco mining company, is well pleased and has men at work running a tunnel.

Messrs. Pilz and Hilloh are on their way to San Francisco. They are large owners in both the quartz and placer mines.

W. B. Robertson, manager of the Taku [illegible] Co., will return by the next steamer to work the company's interest. It is reported that a party in San Francisco will send up a ten-stamp mill by the next steamer.

Captain Tom Wright, who is well known on the Pacific coast, and Dr. Sheldon Jackson of the Presbyterian board of home missions, also came down. Dr. Jackson established new missions among the Hoonyah and Hydah tribes of southeastern Alaska, erected mission buildings at Chilcat, Hoonyah and Chilcat, located three mission families and traveled 500 miles in a canoe during these labors.

The Los Angeles sailed for Victoria this morning thence to San Francisco.

Chicago's Compliments to St. Louis.

[Chicago Tribune.]

St. Louis is an awfully wicked city. The last docket of its criminal court contained twenty-four murder cases, and since then some more have been added. There are also three cases of homicide and thirty-five of assault with intent to kill. Nothing is heard in St. Louis but the mellow pop of the revolver and the subdued rattle of the hospital ambulance as it goes through the grass-grown streets picking up the killed and wounded.

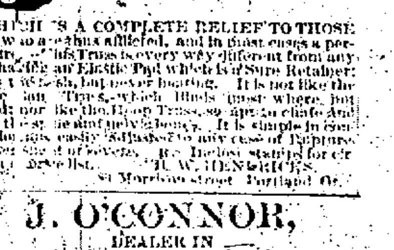
RUPTURE CURED

BY THE USE OF THE

HENDRICKS ELASTIC PAD TRUSS,



WHICH IS A COMPLETE RELIEF TO THOSE who are thus afflicted, and in most cases a perfect cure. This Truss is every way different from any used, having an Elastic Pad which is a Sure Retainer; soft as the flesh, but never heating. It is not like the elastic band Truss, which binds most where not needed; nor like the Hoop Truss, so apt to chafe and injure the hip and pelvic bones. It is simple in construction, easily adjusted to any case of Rupture [illegible] Send stamp for circular [illegible].

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 23, 1881.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

It is unfortunate that there are citizens who cannot find that the murder of the president of the United States teaches any lesson. They fail to see that the assassin is the product of evil practices in our politics. With helpless resignation they affect to regard him simply as an accident which no one can explain. They even go further, and protest against any attempt to show that this murder is a product of the iniquities of our political system, asserting that the imputation does such men as Roscoe Conkling, who are representatives of violent self-seeking in politics, "a cruel wrong." Yet nothing is more plain, nothing more certain, than that the effort of President Garfield to check the abuses which Conkling and his associates were fighting to perpetuate, inflamed this assassin and nerved him to the murder. That fight against President Garfield was at once the inspiration and instigation of the assassin's act. That Conkling and his gang of spoilsmen intended, expected or desired such a result no one supposes; but such was the result, nevertheless. From their attempt to crush the president in order to maintain the spoils system and their old control of it, the leap was a natural one for the mind of a vagrant spoils-hunter like Guiteau to conception of this dreadful deed. No intelligent mind—no mind that looks into the springs and causes of things—but believes that, except for the violent and unrelenting war made on President Garfield because of his proper assertion of the authority of the executive office,—a war made by Senator Conkling and his followers,—this miserable wretch would ever have conceived the idea of perpetrating the crime which has bereft the nation of its chief and sunk the great public heart into the depths of sorrow, shame, humiliation and grief. "President Garfield," [illegible] as the New York Evening Post justly puts it, "is a martyr to his endeavors to resist corruption. The crime against him has awakened the consciousness that it is the duty of the community to struggle against the unbridled self-seeking of individuals." Let us hope that the crime has not only awakened this consciousness, but that it will keep it awake and make it aggressive. There is no citizen who has not herein a duty to perform. That duty should begin with the discouragement of self-seeking, of place-hunting, of professional devotion to the system of intrigue, falsehood, corruption and general immorality which veils itself under the name of "politics," for purposes either of power or of gain. It is time that all citizens should take a stand here, each under a high resolve to do what one man can for correction of the greatest existing public evil. No man who habitually seeks public place ought to have it. The very fact that he comes forth as a place-seeker ought to arouse the people against him. Public opinion ought to stamp place-hunting with infamy, and set its mark of reprobation on the man who pursues it. If a man comes forth as an active seeker of official place he should for that very reason be opposed and rejected. The people should assume the privilege of calling on those whom they would wish to serve them, and a proper rule for every citizen would be to support no man for official position who actively seeks it.

The Salem Statesman says: "An honest effort to secure official positions is just as laudable and honorable as the pursuit of any other legitimate business." If you take the professional place hunter's word for it, every effort he makes is "honest." It is spoil he is after; the emoluments of the public service are in his estimation legitimate prey, and he has the right to get them by any means he can. This is what "honest effort to secure official positions" amounts to in nine cases out of ten. The system breeds corruptions and evils without number. Hence from the very nature of it it never can be legitimate. The instruments by which it expects to succeed are usually those which, if employed in an actually legitimate pursuit, would blast and destroy any reputation. The professional office-seeker, if he expects to succeed, is soon taught that he must make himself serviceable to those who can help or carry him. He must pack primaries; he must control conventions; he must carry elections by hook or crook; he must gain a reputation as a "manager;" he must help to form or he must connect himself with an association whose members are actuated by a common purpose of pursuing "politics" and office holding as a trade; and they must have a chief whose fortunes are to be served with unwearied devotion, while he looks after their interests in turn. Those "honest efforts to secure official positions," of which we read much and see more, invariably take this form. The head of such "effort" in every state is a man like Conkling or Cameron or Logan, each with his train of adherents, dependents and retainers, all pursuing this "legitimate occupation" by "honest effort," ignoring the rights and wishes of the people, attacking the prerogative of the executive, and keeping the country in a state that differs little from civil war.

Of this system one of the not remote effects is the murder of President Garfield. The connection between the assassin and the "legitimate" business of spoils-hunting is as clear as noonday. Part of the scheme of that sort of politics of which the so-called "stalwarts" stand as exponents is the control of the executive. This is necessary to render "honest and laudable effort to secure official position" effective and profitable. The executive office had been degraded into compliance with this scheme. It had become the instrument of a cabal of senatorial bosses who had made the obtainment and distribution of offices a trade. President Garfield attempted to rescue the executive office from this degradation. He tried to "put an end," as the London Times expresses it, "to invasion of the executive power by the senate." How this effort was met by senatorial representatives of the spoils' system has passed into history. One of the secondary though direct effects of the storm raised against the president was to inspire a vagabond place-hunter with the idea that it would be just the thing to remove out of the way an executive who was not giving office-seekers and representatives of the spoils' system the favor and assistance they required. This, in his judgment, was the way to obtain for place hunters a chance for their "rights." The assassin had long been engaged in "honest pursuit of office," but had not succeeded. He had seen his own "claims," as well as those presented by senators, rejected; he had witnessed the storm which the latter had raised about it, and had seen persons and newspapers calling themselves respectable joining in rabid denunciation of the president for this cause. All this led the assassin to think the disease of the spoils' system the natural state of health in the body politic. In this he was not more insane than every spoils-man in the land. The assassin himself is only an aggravated form of the spoils disease. The career of Roscoe Conkling, and of every professional place-hunter and every broker in offices and spoils, is another form or manifestation of it.

It is not only fit but necessary that facts like these should be seen and plainly stated. This great crime is not without assignable cause. It ought to be the means of urging a reform that will check the evils of self-seeking and place-hunting; that will make admission to the public service depend on fixed rules and give an assured tenure during efficiency to all persons in subordinate positions; that will put it out of the power of senators, representatives and all classes of politicians to secure appointments, and make it known that the only way that official positions, other than those filled by the direct vote of the people, can be obtained, is through regular methods, appointed by law, which can be set aside in no one's favor. Had such a system been in force upon the accession of President Garfield the struggle with Senator Conkling would not have taken place; Guiteau would never have dreamed of becoming a place-hunter, as no one would have seen all places out of his reach; President Garfield would now be living, and the country would have been spared a great shock, shame and sorrow. "Guiteau," says the Catholic Sentinel truly, "and with great force, is but one of that class of people who place the covetousness of their selfishness above the respect they owe to lawful authority." Down then with the system that tends more than anything else to create and recruit a class so dangerous to the country!

Representatives of New York papers, the indefatigable brigade known and described by the vernal monstrosity, "interviewers," have been pumping an assortment of opinions out of Mr. John Walter, proprietor of the London Times. If we are to believe their reports he declares Bradlaugh a ruffian; thinks that Gladstone will remain in power so long as he lives; believes that the hereditary peerage will yet be abolished and the house of lords become an elective body; says that the radical creed in England is "no crown, no lords, no church;" thinks one of the worst features in our system is the frequency of elections; and to persistent interrogatories answers that the London Times has between 50,000 and 60,000 daily circulation; that "it professes to give the views of public affairs which has been gathered from the most capable, the best informed and the most long-headed men in England, and sometimes it has distinctive views of its own;" and pronounces the American press more provincial than the English, observing in explanation, "You see, you have no foreign relations worth speaking of, and your interests are domestic." He did not think a sensational American paper would have any standing in London.

President Garfield, on being removed from the White House, as he passed out of its doors into the grounds, turned his head on his pillow, looked up at the mansion and waved his wasted hand towards it as a token of adieu. Who can tell what was passing through his mind at that moment? Rather, who cannot guess that he was thinking how uncertain all human hopes are, and how unstable all earthly glory?

Monday next, not Tuesday as heretofore reported, is the day appointed for the funeral of the late president. A proclamation has been issued by President Arthur, in which Monday is designated as the day. Gov. Thayer wishes to make it known that his proclamation, heretofore published, in which Tuesday was named as the day, is modified to accord with this arrangement.

THE POWERS CASE.

THE TRIAL STILL IN PROGRESS—THE PROSECUTION CLOSED.

Testimony for the Defense now being Taken.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Court [illegible] at 9 A. M. Present as yesterday.

[illegible]

[illegible] Hillsboro; was acquainted with Powers and Cornelius; had conversation with Powers in Portland July 4th, in which he said something about his trouble and [illegible] he was going away, [illegible] some other talk [illegible] where he was going. He replied that he was going to Ireland, but that he would be back with the boss before long.

J. [illegible].

Had a conversation with Powers at Esmond hotel on the 4th or 5th of May; he asked me to take a drink; after we drank the [illegible] walked out and he asked me in regard to Ben's folks—if I knew what they thought of him; after we had talked a while he said, "Ben Cornelius is a pretty big man; he has got money and lots of friends, but if he has said what I have heard and what I believe he said, I will kill him, G—d d—n him!" He said further that he was going to show the people of Forest Grove who Jack Powers was and give them something to talk about; that he was not going to go out into a crowd of Cornelius' friends and give him any advantage.

BEN INGALLS.

Met Powers the latter part of June in Portland; he asked me if I had seen old Ben lately; I told him I had; he said he was going to Washington county after [illegible] of his business settled and make the son of a b—— swallow [illegible].

Cross-examined—Have resided at Greenville 9 years; known Powers about 12 years; have been acquainted with Cornelius a long time; I know Kenyon Crandall; I never told him that I had never heard Powers make any threats or what I considered threats against Cornelius; never told any one so.

CHARLES [illegible].

Have lived in Washington county for thirty odd years, know Cornelius and Powers. The first conversation I had a long conversation in April last, in which Cornelius was referred to; he said "take away Ben Cornelius' money and he is no better man than Jack Powers." The last of May I had another conversation with Powers in which he said Sarah and Charley and Tillie wanted him to kill their father so they could get to handle his money; but that he (Powers) would not humor them that much; he also said something in reference to Cornelius taking something back—could not tell now just what it was that he said Ben had got to take back.

Cross-examined—Powers hatred, as expressed in his conversations with me, did not seem to be so much against Ben as against Sarah (Powers' former wife) and her mother, Mrs. Cornelius.

WM. INBRIE.

Went on the 3d day of July with Powers to the Esmond and looked over the register. Powers read over the names of the Cornelius family aloud; we then walked out; later in the evening he said to me that if Ben Cornelius spoke to him he would "tell him to go to hell." When Powers read the names on the register he spoke them out so persons in the room who were listening could hear them. Cornelius was in the room.

Cross-examined—Don't know what was Powers' object in looking over the register.

CHAS. T. TOZIER.

On the evening of July 4th I went from the fireworks to the Esmond hotel about 1[illegible] o'clock, and went to Mr. Cornelius' room and staid with him until next day. Went into the room with Dr. Saylor. Mrs. Cornelius and Mrs. Powers and Tillie were in the room we entered. [Witness then related the statement made by deceased in relation to the affray substantially as given by Dr. Saylor, Tillie Cornelius and Mrs. Cornelius.] He knew those who came into the room and called by name; he was entirely rational, but was in great pain; I heard him say next morning, "Jack has done what he has wanted to do for a long time; he has killed me." I never heard Mr. Cornelius threaten Powers.

EWING [illegible].

Know Powers; had a conversation with him shortly, within ten days before the shooting; it was in the Holton house one evening; don't know whether Ben Cornelius was in Portland at that time.

CHARLES W. CORNELIUS.

Am a son of Ben Cornelius; have lived at Forest Grove mostly for nine years; Powers was my brother-in-law; last winter (in March) he met me in Portland as I was going to my room, and after abusing me awhile he said, "I won't hurt you, you are nothing but a walking skeleton anyway; you'll die in a few days anyway; but I'll settle with old Ben or I'll kill him; he stopped with me at Spokan about two weeks when we came to Portland on the 3d of July I saw Powers near the Esmond hotel, where we had stopped; I was not about the Esmond much of the time that day; on the evening of the 4th after 7 o'clock, I went down stairs to see where my father was, and, stepping out at the door of the hotel, saw him sitting on a box on the sidewalk opposite with two men; I crossed over to where they were and spoke to them; father said, "Charley, I want to speak to you;" we went round the corner, and saw Jack Powers near the Occidental restaurant; after a short conversation I went back to the hotel; soon heard two shots, and went around behind the counter and got two pistols and ran into the street; the first I saw of the men they were lying side by side, but by the time I got to them Powers had crawled more upon my father; I pulled Powers off and asked father if he was hurt; he said, "Yes, I'm shot all to pieces, kill the son of a b—h;" I then stepped off a step and fired; Powers afterward got up and said, "Let me kill the son of a b—h," and made a grab at my throat; we struggled across the street and Powers fell again about five feet from the Esmond sidewalk; my father made several remarks to me; one was, "He has dogged me all day, and has got me at last;" I took a pistol from Powers.

Cross-examined—The shooting was all done before I got out of the Esmond; I heard several shots, 6 or [illegible]; after I heard the first two shots in rapid succession, I started to get the pistols from behind the counter; I am not sure, but think I took the pistol from Powers after I fired; it was some time in the spring of 1880 that Powers visited me at Spokan Falls.

Re-direct—At the time I saw my father sitting with Mr. Atwood on the box opposite the Esmond, I was not armed at all; had no arms that day until after the shooting began, when I got the pistols in the hotel.

J. H. BRENNER.

Cornelius and his family most generally stopped at the Esmond when they came to the city. I remember the time when Mr. Cornelius and his daughters and Mr. Saufly were stopping at the hotel. "Powers was in the habit of coming to the hotel when the Cornelius family was there. [This witness related the circumstances of the attempt of a clerk to stop Powers on the stairs of the hotel as detailed in the testimony of Mr. Saufly, and of the taking of the pistols by Charles Cornelius as told in the evidence of the latter.]

C. S. SILVER.

Saw Powers at the police station shortly after the shooting. Powers was brought down there. He said if he did die, Charley Cornelius was the man that shot him; that he expected to die, and hoped that Cornelius was dead and in hell.

Cross-examined—We all thought he would die; his face was all covered over with blood; he spoke plainly, and seemed to be conscious. He spoke up in a good voice. I could see no evidences of unconsciousness. Several others were present, some coming in as I left where he lay.

C. P. ELWANGER.

On the evening when the shooting occurred, I was standing in front of the Occidental hotel. Hearing of the shooting I ran to the scene, found the two men on the ground; lifted Cornelius on to the sidewalk. Charley Cornelius said: "There's the s— of a b— that killed my father." Powers got up and grabbed at Charley Cornelius' throat, saying, let me get at the s— of a b—, and I'll kill him. I helped to take Powers to the police station on a stretcher. On the way he said several times, "Charley Cornelius killed me; boys, hang the s— of a b—. I am going to die; I'm glad I killed Ben."

Recess till 1:30.

Afternoon Session.

Court met at 1:30 P. M., pursuant to adjournment. The first witness called was

W. B. WILSON.

Am a waiter at the Aurora restaurant; have been working there since last June; was working there on July 4th; I knew Cornelius slightly; know Powers only by sight; left the restaurant on the evening of July 4th about 25 minutes to 8 o'clock; went up Front street towards Morrison; when I came near Barman's store saw Cornelius and Powers standing near the edge of the sidewalk, Cornelius had one foot on the edge of the sidewalk; both men were talking in a loud voice, they were standing very close together; heard Cornelius say to Powers, "I wish you would go away Jack, you have been following me all day and threatening to kill me; I want to have no difficulty with you; your intentions are not good"; Powers answered, "yes, I will make trouble for you"; he then pushed Cornelius back with his hand and drawing a pistol, fired. I think he shot twice; Cornelius put his hands up after the firing and said, "you have shot me at last; you have done the deed!" Cornelius then drew his pistol and fired; I was 6[illegible] about 20 feet away at the time, the two men were quarreling; there was a crowd of people standing around; after the shots were exchanged the men grappled and began to struggle; they then fell. Cornelius was on top, but Powers being stronger, rolled him; just then Charley Cornelius came out of the Esmond and rolled Powers off; he said, "Is that you, father?" Cornelius answered yes; I am shot all to pieces by Jack; he has been following me all day; he has done the deed at last; I remained at the scene until they carried Cornelius into the hotel on a cot; I heard Cornelius say to the doctors and those around him, "they can do nothing for me; I am going to die;" I assisted in carrying Cornelius into the hotel office; afterwards they carried him up stairs; saw Charlie come out from the Esmond and take the pistol out of Powers' hand after he rolled him off his father.

Cross-examination—Both men were standing on the sidewalk; Cornelius put one foot on the sidewalk; Cornelius said, "Jack I want you to go away, you have been following me all day, your intentions are not good; I want no trouble with you;" Powers said, "G—d d—n you, I will make trouble for you." He immediately drew his pistol and fired; think Powers shot twice before Cornelius had advanced; after Powers shot Cornelius said, "you have shot me at last;" he then drew his pistol and fired; both men then grappled and began to struggle; they then fell; Powers [illegible] Cornelius over and struck him in the face; struck three or four times; he was very weak and did not strike hard; saw Charlie take the pistol from Powers; this is the first time I have made this statement; told other parties a different story in order to avoid being a witness in this case; saw Powers pull out his pistol and heard it fired later; saw Powers carried off on a cot to the police station; some one said, "Jack is dead," and I rolled him over; he was rolled over several times; others said, "he is not dead; let us get a cot and take care of him;" when the shooting commenced I was in front of Schade's saloon; was afraid to go one way or the other for fear of getting shot myself; heard a number of shots fired, some four or five; could not tell; was too much excited to keep track of the shots; did not hear or see Charlie fire a shot after he came out.

AMUS A. FREEMAN.

A farmer of Columbia; I knew Jack Powers; have had business relations with him about a year ago, to look after the timber; we made a bargain, and he came back in about a month after, and as we were looking about the place, he said, "Freeman, I was offered a better farm than yours [illegible] present. I said, "Why didn't you take it?" He said, "it is not big enough for me and my father-in-law—Washington county is not big enough; nor is the state of Oregon big enough, nor is the world big enough; I will kill the s— of a b—." I [illegible] about my business; saw Powers afterwards, but not at my house; have lived in Oregon since [illegible]; lived in Portland [illegible] years, worked in Nicolai's planing mill [illegible] years.

[illegible] W. [illegible].

Recalled—The man that I saw talking to Powers when my father and I went round the corner before the shooting, was dressed in gray clothes, a medium sized man, rather broad shouldered, with a peculiar mark about his [illegible], something like a scar. He was one of the first men that came up after the shooting. I think I would recognize him if I could see him. I think I saw him in a [illegible] with Powers that [illegible], but I am not sure.

Here the prosecution rested.

H. [illegible].

Was called and sworn on behalf of the defense and examined by H. Y. Thompson. I was night clerk at the Occidental on July 4th, and had been from some time prior. Powers had a room there from the latter part of February or beginning of March.

[illegible] MARTIN.

Live in Portland; know defendant Powers; his business on and prior to the 4th of July was getting out ties for the O. R. & N. Co.; [illegible] with it he was having; owing [illegible] with a boat [illegible] at the foot of Morrison street.

Cross-examined—I have taken an active part in this defense; have been indirectly engaged in business with him; was on his bonds [illegible] [illegible]. Did not see the [illegible] of the [illegible] know only from common hearsay.

WM. IMBRIE.

Am acquainted with defendant; saw him on the morning of July 4th at the Occidental; he and [illegible] went down the street to the Morrison street wharf. On the way to the wharf he said he wanted to go to St. Helens.

CHARLES [illegible].

Reside at St. Helens; am in the sawmill business; was in Portland July 4th; know Powers [illegible] year [illegible]; him in Portland July 4th; first saw him on the [illegible] by the St. Charles; had some conversation with him; his manner was as usual; saw him again [illegible] the Bureau saloon; also went out riding with him about 5 o'clock P. M.; we went around the [illegible] turned at 7:30; we went to the stable and then walked down to the Esmond where I left him after 8 o'clock.

Cross-examined—As we came out of the Esmond [illegible] Cornelius came in and [illegible] and Powers rubbed up against each other; Cornelius said "How are you, Jack?" or "Hello, Jack;" Powers said nothing until he got out; he said "I haven't got any [illegible] that. By G—d, I don't want any of that;" I had on black clothes; Myers, who went down the Occidental to the Esmond with me and Powers, had a light coat on, if I am not mistaken; don't know when he left; he was not present at the fight; that was in the St. Charles eating supper; I did not take hold of any person; did not say to Charles Cornelius "G—d d—n you, if I had a pistol I'd shoot you," did not strike him or any other person.

KENYON CRANDALL.

Am a farmer; live in Washington county.

Question by Mr. Thompson—Have you ever had a conversation with Benjamin Cornelius in reference to defendant Powers; if so, what was that conversation, and when and where did it occur?

Objected to by counsel for the prosecution on the ground that threats made by deceased against defendant were inadmissible until it was shown that deceased was the aggressor.

The objection was argued at length and allowed by the court.

Court here took a recess until 7:30 o'clock.

CORRECTION.

In our report of the testimony of Miss Tillie Cornelius, published yesterday, she was made to say that the conversation between her sister and the defendant Powers, in the Esmond hotel, occurred on the 3d of July. We were then satisfied that she did not mean to give that as the date of the conversation, but that she was somewhat confused by counsel's questions concerning transactions occurring on different dates. The date of the conversation Miss Cornelius fixes is January 17th.

Evening Session.

Court met at 7:30. On convening, the examination of Kenyon Crandale was continued.

Cornelius said he would have to kill the d—d s— of a b— some time or other, and the sooner the better; Cornelius in the course of a conversation with me in last June, said, "I will have to kill Powers yet;" he said this while speaking of the trouble that Powers had caused him in relation to his (Cornelius') family; Cornelius was in an excited state of mind when he said these things; he spoke rather loud and excitedly; I know Mr. Ben. Ingalls; had a conversation with him about two weeks ago at Cornelius; during that conversation Ingalls stated to me that he had never heard Powers make any threat against Cornelius, to him, nor anything that seemed like a threat.

Cross-examination—Cornelius wanted me to lend him three or four hundred dollars; he wanted to use it in liquidating a mortgage; I think I loaned him $250. He said, in speaking of Jack Powers, that he was a bastard; that he had made a great deal of trouble in his family; that he would have to kill the d—d s—b some time, and the sooner the better; that Powers had nearly ruined some of his family; that he would have to kill him; I told him to stop, for I did not want him to tell me any more about his troubles with Powers; did not want to hear it; shut him off several times when he began to talk about Powers; do not think I told Ingalls in Pat Powers' saloon that I had heard both sides talk a good deal; told him I did not know anything about the case.

WM. JOHNSON.

Reside in Washington county; knew Cornelius; have known him since I was a boy; last June had a conversation with Cornelius, in which he said he would have to kill the s—b sooner or later; this conversation took place in Cornelius' [illegible].

Cross-examination—I was convicted two years ago of stealing a Suffolk pig, and fined $100 by Judge Shattuck.

W. JACKSON.

Reside in Washington county; have known Cornelius since 1857; have known Powers for some years; saw Cornelius in Portland on the 4th of July; he was sitting in the door of the Bureau saloon, nearly opposite the Occidental Hotel; saw Powers going in the direction of where Cornelius was sitting; he turned and crossed the street toward the Occidental Hotel and then went up toward Goddard's; my feelings have always been friendly toward Cornelius.

R. W. CRANE.

Reside in Washington county; knew Cornelius and Powers; saw Powers in Portland on the 4th of July; saw Cornelius several times; cannot state just when; Powers talked with me several times during that day; saw Cornelius each time he was walking about near where we were standing; Powers would take me to one side, and talk privately and soon I would see Cornelius walking about it or standing near; he immediately walked or stood; once when he apparently [illegible] heard what Powers was saying to me he looked very much out of humor; once he walked at me as he passed; we went into the Esmond to take a drink; after taking a drink we started to go out; just as we went out Cornelius came in at the door; he and Powers ran against each other; he shoved rather roughly against each other, so that their shoulders struck; went to the fireworks on the evening of the 4th.

Cross-examination—During the 4th Powers had several conversations with me; he must have talked with me at least three times during that afternoon.

COURTNEY MEEK.

Live in Washington county; have lived there for 41 years; know both Cornelius and Powers; saw Cornelius on the evening of July 4th in front of the Esmond; had 15 or 20 minutes conversation with him at the time we went into the Esmond and took a drink; saw Powers while we were standing there; Cornelius also saw him; he said in that conversation a great deal about Powers; we were talking about matters in general; he said he reposed much confidence in me; that I had been in trouble; that he expected to have trouble himself; that he expected a row; that there was death lurking in the air some where; it might be him and it might not; I told him if he went for Jack, to go for blood, for if he got into trouble with Jack Powers he might expect to get hurt, for he was a mighty hard man to beat. While we were speaking Powers came along; Cornelius said, "There goes the d—d Irish s— of a b—; for two cents I'd shoot him now!" I said, "Hold on, Ben, be careful what you are saying;" he said "I am going to send my family home in the morning, and, by G—d, Sarah (Mrs. Powers) has got to go too; and I propose to stay and see it out." He asked me if I was armed; I told him "yes, but it was a bad thing;" I saw that he was armed; he said, "you know how I am situated;" saw the row in front of the Esmond; saw Cornelius strike Powers twice in the face, which staggered him and knocked him to his knees; Powers rose and fired twice; Cornelius then began to fire. [Witness then detailed the particulars of the shooting substantially the same as has been already given.]

Cross-examination—Cornelius said that Jack had been following him around all day and he did not propose to keep out of his way any longer; that some one had told him Powers intended to kill him; he did not want me to leave him for he expected trouble; said he, "If you are with me this d—d s—n b—h will let me alone;" he said he wanted to ask my advice, wanted me to advise him what to do; at the time of shooting heard both men talking loud; heard Cornelius say, "You would shoot me, would you, you d—d s—n b—h;" saw Cornelius strike Powers twice fairly in the face with a pistol; saw him catch hold of Powers by the coat and pull him toward him and strike at him over the shoulder, and saw his pistol discharge; saw Charley come out of the hotel and ask his father if he was hurt; he said, "Yes, my boy, I am shot all to pieces. I am done for;" saw Charley shoot at Powers while he was lying on the sidewalk; saw some man with a white suit of clothes catch hold of Charley and say, "You [illegible] s—n b—h, if I was armed I would shoot you!" raised Cornelius' head and asked him if he was much hurt and he said, "I am shot all to pieces!" saw Powers drawing his pistol from his pocket while Cornelius was striking him and for an instant after; did not see Charley and Powers struggling at all at the time of the shooting; at first I started over across the street, thinking I might be able to stop the row, but I concluded that it was none of my business, that it was a family row.

Court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

THE DEAD RULER.

Meeting of Citizens to make Arrangements for Observing the Funeral Day—Committee Appointed.

Pursuant to a call from Mayor Thompson, a meeting of the citizens of Portland was held last night in the court house, to take measures to observe the funeral day of the dead president. Notwithstanding several heavy showers which fell from six until eight, a considerable number of prominent gentlemen gathered, and were called to order promptly at 7 o'clock by the mayor. He stated in fitting terms the object of the meeting.

Upon motion of Mr. H. Y. Thompson, Mayor Thompson was chosen chairman.

The reporters of the daily journals were upon motion of [illegible] J. F. Caples chosen secretaries.

Ex-Governor Gibbs stated that there was not a building in the city large enough to hold the people that may desire to participate in the ceremonies, and as the weather might be unfavorable for an out-door meeting, he moved that a committee of three be appointed to draft such resolutions as would be appropriate to the occasion; and that the pastors of the several city churches be requested to hold services at their respective places of worship next Tuesday.

H. Y. Thompson moved that the committee be allowed until Saturday morning to report their action, including a programme of exercises through the morning papers. The motion as amended was adopted.

J. F. Caples moved that the committee be instructed to invite all school children to participate in the exercises; carried.

The chairman named A. C. Gibbs, Dr. A. L. Lindsley and H. Y. Thompson as the committee.

A motion that these [illegible] of the various papers be added to the committee was carried.

Ex-Gov. Gibbs called a meeting of the committee to be held this (Friday) evening at [illegible] o'clock at the city council chamber, and the invites all ministers in the city to meet the committee there at that time.

AT VANCOUVER.

Mayor Louis Sohns of Vancouver, has called a meeting of the citizens of that city to be held this evening to take measures for the observance of the funeral day of President Garfield.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY.

At a regular meeting of Stoneman Post No. 31, G. A. R., held last night, the following resolutions were passed:

HEADQ'RS STONEMAN POST NO. 31, G. A. R.,
Portland, Sept. 22, 1881.

WHEREAS, This post has received the sad intelligence of the death of the chief magistrate of the United States; therefore,

Resolved, That in the person of our late comrade, James A. Garfield, the highest qualities of a soldier were exemplified.

Resolved, That we esteemed President Garfield, in domestic and private life, as a noble example of solid virtue, and in political life a [illegible] statesman, and as the executive head of the nation highly elevated upon the principles of Christianity, noble patriotism, justice, mercy, peace, equality and liberty—a good president; be it further

Resolved, That we look upon the assassin's act not as a personal delusion of a mad or special individual wickedness, but as resulting from the spirit of wickedness which is prevailing in the world, introducing the knife, torch and incendiary machines of the reckless nihilists and socialists; be it further

Resolved, That we extend to the aged and venerable mother of the president, his estimable wife and children, our Christian sympathy and heartfelt condolence in this hour of deep affliction.

MILITARY OBSERVANCES.

The following order has been issued by Gen. N. A. Miles and telegraphed to every post in the department of the Columbia:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE COLUMBIA,
VANCOUVER BARRACKS, W. T., Sept. 22, 1881.

General Orders No. 23.—The commanding general informs his command that the remains of the late president will be interred at Cleveland, Ohio, on Monday, the 26th inst.

Throughout the department on that day all labor will be suspended; at all forts, posts and stations, the flag will be displayed at half-mast from sunrise to sunset and 21 minute guns will be fired at 12 o'clock M.

These observances are not to take the place of or interfere with those prescribed in General Orders No. 71, current series, adjutant general's office, headquarters of the army, announcing the death of the president. By command of Brigadier General Miles.

O. D. GREENE, Asst. Adjt. General.

COMRADES, ATTENTION.

HEADQ'RS GEORGE WRIGHT POST NO. 1,
DEPARTMENT OF OREGON, G. A. R.,
PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 23, 1881.

You will please take notice that our regular weekly encampment takes place this (Friday) evening, Sept. 23, 1881. Every comrade is requested to be present, as business of importance in regard to memorial services to be held on the occasion of the funeral of our comrade President James A. Garfield will be presented for action.

Comrades of Garfield and Stoneman Posts, G. A. R., are cordially invited to meet with us. By command of N. B. PIERCE, Post Commander.

RASH HASHONAH—5642.

The Jewish and Masonic year 5642 begins to-day at 6 o'clock P. M., and will be observed by our Jewish citizens on the basis of the scriptural injunction contained in Leviticus xxiii., 23 and Numbers xxix., 1. Solemn services, during each of which an English sermon will be preached, will be held in the synagogue, corner Oak and Fifth streets, beginning as follows: This Friday at 6 o'clock P. M.; Saturday at 8 A. M. and 6:30 P. M.; Sunday at 8 A. M. Preaching during the morning services begins at 9:45 and in the evening at 6:30 and 7 o'clock respectively.

Since an emperor of the Chinese many centuries ago burned all scholars alive, and the Spanish adventurer, Ferdinand de Cortez, burned all the valuable and rare picture records at the Pueblo de Montezumah, and since most all ancient and authentic records have been [illegible] by the destruction of the great Alexandrian library it is, especially to students, of absorbing interest to know how the various eras of ordinary embolismic, solar and lunar years have been established through Hebrew, Samaritan and Greek channels of information. To know this as the Christians count from the birth of Jesus; the Mohammedan from the Hegira, so the Greeks counted from the Olympiades and the Romans from the building of the city of Rome. But Ezra, the scribe, some 2233 years ago, took the era of Nabonezer of Babylonia, who in turn computed the time according to some still existing chains of information left by the priest, Manetho Sebennythus, of lower Egypt, who was the friend and contemporary of the priest of On—Aaron, the elder brother of Remeses, or Moses, the great law-giver of the Jews.

MEMORIAL EXERCISES AT SALEM.

The following call was issued at Salem on Wednesday last, pursuant to which the various committees met and decided upon a programme as published below. Invitations have been sent to the surrounding towns and villages, and a cordial invitation is extended to every one to be present and participate in the exercises of the day:

SALEM, SEPT. 21, 1881.

The city of Salem, at the request of many citizens, has taken steps to perfect arrangements for funeral exercises of President Garfield, the exercises to take place on Tuesday, September 27th, or at such time as may be determined upon by proclamation of the governor. If the weather is pleasant the exercises will be held in front of the capitol building; otherwise in the representative hall at the capitol. The following committees have been selected by the council, and we respectfully urge that each committee meet promptly so that arrangements may be perfected, and the programme and exercises arranged as soon as possible.

President of the Day—Mayor [illegible] W. Crawford.

Negotiations are pending, with every indication of success, for the presence with us of the Ladies' Brass Band of Albany, who will furnish music for the occasion.

Hon. R. P. Earhart, secretary of state, will have constructed from the front or west entrance of the capitol building a large platform for the use of the speakers and officers of the day.

THE RECENT DROWNING

Full Description of the Five Men who Lost their Lives in the Columbia last Friday.

The following is a description of the men who were drowned by the swamping of a small boat in the Columbia river eight miles below the Cascades on Friday last:

Eli Owen, 5 feet 8 inches in height, dark complexion, clean shaved except moustache. Had on blue flannel shirt and brown overalls. Had boots on.

[illegible] Manning, 5 feet 7 inches in height, light brown hair, clean shaved except moustache, sandy. Brown striped shirt, short dark gray pants. Aged 26 years.

John Simpson, dark complexion, no beard. Wore blue jumper, brown overalls and shoes. Aged 23 or 24 years.

Simon Carl, aged 60 years; light complexion, sandy and gray hair, whiskers and moustache. Wore light duck coat, light brown striped shirt and brown overalls.

Joseph Johnson, aged 25 years, light complexion, light curly hair and moustache. Wore navy blue suit of clothes and boots.

[illegible] Manning was from Lancaster, Penn., and was a plumber by trade.

John Simpson, formerly of San Francisco, a copper[illegible] by trade.

Eli Owen and Simon Carl, nothing known of them.

MINES OF THE CASCADE RANGE.

Notes of a Visit to the Mines of the Swauk, Pechastin and Nigger Creek.

ELLENSBURG, Sept. 12, 1881.

The mining sections tributary to the Kittitass valley are the Swauk, Pechastin, Smilkameen and the bars of the Columbia. There are also extensive ledges of splendid building stone—brown and grey granite, susceptible of a fine polish, located within six miles of this place. A species of white marble has been discovered on the mountains between the Kittitass and Wenatchee, 13 miles from here. Having heard much for and against the mines of the Swauk and Pechastin, I determined upon visiting them for a personal inspection. They are distant respectively 25 and 38 miles, in a northwesterly direction from this point. The road follows up the Swauk through a succession of picturesque little valleys and narrow canyons to the Swauk mines and thence across a steep divide about a thousand feet in height to Pechastin creek.

The Swauk has been the field of extensive placer mining and still continues to pay fairly. Some half dozen or more claims are now worked paying about five dollars per day to the man. At different periods I have seen a score or more of nuggets ranging in value from $50 to $443, and recently by J. A. Shoudy at Ellensburg, I have been shown three nuggets valued respectively at $62, $102 and $277, all taken from these placers. There have also been rich quartz discoveries reported, some of them quite recent, but the developments were not sufficiently extensive for me to venture even an opinion as to their value. However the locators were sanguine of rich results. Upon the Pechastin, although the development has not been extensive, in fact is merely in its inception, yet the prospects are certainly very fine. I was surprised to find at these mines quartz lodes taken in hand and in many instances actually being successfully opened by men with no capital other than their own individual labor, and the mines not only paying their way from the start, but affording a handsome surplus wherewith to purchase machinery, etc. This is especially remarkable considering the difficulties encountered. The mill machinery has to be hauled nearly 200 miles from The Dalles, the latter 13 miles requiring a road to be newly opened over a rugged range, and through a dense forest of timber and underbrush; and then in one instance—that of the Cascade mill machinery—lifted by a double block and tackle over the dividing ridge separating Pechastin from Nigger creek, whose steep sides rise vertically to a height of nearly 2000 feet. This was successfully accomplished by Capt. Blinn, the energetic superintendent of the Cascade Mining company. Referring to this difficult piece of work, a Nevada mining expert, who recently visited the locality, remarked that in all his mining experience of 23 years in Nevada and California he had never seen so huge an undertaking, and, if the machinery was not caught and stopped while en route by the snows of winter, then would the captain certainly be entitled to "the cake." However, the plucky captain, aided by an indomitable will and a previous nautical experience, in one week's time safely landed the machinery at Nigger creek, where it is now being expeditiously placed in position, and with a splendid water power at command will soon cause the dizzy walls of that wildly romantic canyon to resound night and day with its reverberating music.

The mill is what is known as Huntington's oscillator. The tunnel at this mine is now in nearly 400 feet, following a well defined ledge averaging four feet in width, besides tapping and passing through several rich spurs, which are held in reserve to be worked by lateral tunnels hereafter. What is known as the Pechastin and Nigger Creek district is composed primarily of three ledges, which have been definitely traced in an east and west direction by their outcroppings for a distance of six miles, all of which have been located and claimed. It is supposed that the most southerly one is the main ledge, owing to the fact that it pays the best. The original discovery or first location, eight years since, was on Pechastin creek and was named Pechastin lode, now owned by Price and Wyter. Thence going east, are the "W. Elliott," the "Golden Cherry" and the "Rising Sun" ledges. West from the Pechastin lode are the "T. Dwyer," "Humming Bird," "Bob-tail" and "Shafer Pocket." Thence continuing west across the divide is the Cascade company previously alluded to, west of which some thirty different claims have been located.

On Pechastin creek there are eight arastras working continuously. The most extensive tunneling on this creek is at the "Golden Cherry" owned by Shafer & Shoudy, and is upon a lower level than any on the creek. It is now in nearly 200 feet, where it has just struck the main ledge, which was indicated by a shaft sunk tapping the ledge from above at an elevation of 500 feet and from which ore has been extracted sufficiently rich to nearly pay for their entire working expenses. Specimens from the upper shaft of this ledge were shown me, a sort of decomposed quartz mixed with clay, which were wonderfully rich, and if found in the lower tunnel in sufficient quantities, (and of which there are strong indications, as the lode is constantly increasing in size and richness as the tunnel progresses,) will constitute a veritable bonanza for its enterprising proprietors. The Rising Sun ledge owned by Bolman & Summers, is also working in wonderfully rich rock, specimens of which I have in my possession which will assay over $1800 per town. Price & Wyter, owners of the Pechastin lode, have also large bodies of splendid ore. The T. Dwyer lode, recently purchased by a company headed by Alvin Baker, general business manager for Judge Johnson, has large bodies of very rich quartz in sight. The Shafer G. & S. M. Co., owned principally by Lockwoods & Cooper, continue to extract splendid rock from their three claims, the "Humming Bird," "Bob-tail," and "Shafer Pocket," by which they have been enabled to purchase a six-stamp quartz mill, which they have recently brought in and are now engaged in placing in position.

The above ledges vary in width from eighteen inches to nine feet, and have paid steadily and continuously from $10 to $75 per ton, and at times have run as high as $100 per ton. The general formation of this section is composed of slate and granite. The ore veins carry cinnabar, galena, manganese, etc., and are generally encased within granite, hornblende and serpentine walls. Silver is also found, and in paying quantities, in most of the quartz, which in time will certainly attract more attention.

Up to this date the opening of these mines has, with one exception, been entirely undertaken by home capital, and that consisted principally of pluck and muscle. Capt. Marshal Blinn and J. A. Shoudy, both men of indomitable pluck and perseverance, have been the leading spirits in backing and assisting in their development. Now that the preliminary difficulties are in a fair way to be overcome it requires but the advent of a railroad to this section to enlist outside capital and hasten that development.

ESCRITO.

THE YORKTOWN CENTENNIAL.

Active Preparations for the Celebration—Site of the Monument—Accommodations for the Soldiers, Guests and Visitors.

The site selected for the monument is on a bluff overlooking the river adjoining and below the village boundary line. Facing the river and looking to the right, eastwardly, the view is unobstructed to the capes of Virginia, distant about 28 miles. In front, northwardly the view is directly across the river to Gloucester point and over Gloucester county. To the left, northwardly, up the broad river in a direct line to West Point, the junction of the Pamunkey and Mattaponi rivers, which form the York. The other view, southward, will overlook the plains of Yorktown. When erected the monument will be distinctly visible from all vessels passing up and down Chesapeake bay.

The land, purchased by the government for $1000, embraces six acres, and lies just within what were the British lines.

The foundation for the base of the monument has been dug and filled in with granite concrete. The corner-stone of granite taken from the Richmond quarries, the same from which the state, war and navy department buildings at Washington have been constructed, is on the ground, ready to be lowered in position for Masonic ceremonies. The encampment for United States troops and state military and Masonic societies will be on Temple farm, about a mile and a half distant from the monument site. It is an open field, nearly level, but with sufficient undulation for proper drainage, and well adapted to army encampment.

On this field from 1200 to 1500 tents, each sheltering fifteen men, and furnished by the war department, will be erected. Fresh water in ample quantity will be supplied from Warmley creek. It will be raised into tanks by two engines of thirty horse power each, and distributed throughout the camp, for which purpose 10,000 feet of pipe will be used. It is estimated about 26,900 military and 5000 Masons will be in tents.

For the accommodation of the executive officers of the government, members of the cabinet, the congressional commission and distinguished guests, a reception building 100 feet long and 60 wide, is being built. It will contain a room for the commission, one for the secretary of state, one for ladies, but a large part of the space will be taken up for purposes of entertainment. This building is only a few feet from the site. In addition, the commission have rented the old Nelson house, which is undergoing thorough repair and is said to be intended for the French guests.

In addition to these preparations by the congressional commission, the Yorktown centennial association, composed of well-known citizens of the the thirteen original states, is also aiding the commission. They have purchased the Temple farm and tendered its use for camping ground. They have also renovated and repaired from cellar to garret the Moore house, which is on the Temple farm. It will be handsomely carpeted and papered by New York and Philadelphia merchants, and tendered to the congressional commission for use by its guests. It was in this house the articles of capitulation were considered and agreed to. The association is also about erecting a building 250 by 64, for hotel purposes, designed to accommodate 1000 persons with beds. On the part of the people of Yorktown absolutely no preparations are being made.

Ancient and Modern Proposals.

NEW STYLE.

Her eyes shone a beautiful, joyous light when he leaned forward and said:

"Julia, I have something confidential to tell you."

"What is it, Augustus?" she asked in a low, silvery voice—a kind of a German silvery voice.

"Well, Julia, to be frank with you, I think"—and then he seems to be thinking. "I think," he said, "that, under the circumstances I might love you. Now do you love me?"

"Yes, Augustus, I do love you—you know I do;" and she flung her alabaster arms around his neck.

"I am very glad, Julia," he said, "for I like to be loved."

"Well, Augustus?"

But Augustus never said another word. Fashionable fellows never say more than that nowadays. They were never married.

OLD STYLE.

"May I call you Paula?" he asked modestly.

"Yes," she said faintly.

"Dear Paula! may I call you that?"

"I suppose so."

"Do you know I love you?"

"Yes."

"And shall I love you always?"

"If you wish to."

"And will you love me?"

Paula did not reply.

"Will you, Paula?" he repeated.

"You may love me," she said again.

"But don't you love me in return?"

"I love you to love me."

"Won't you say anything more explicitly?"

"I would rather not."

They were married and happy within three months.

THURSDAY, EVENING, Sept. 22.

Trade in general merchandise so far this month has been greater than any September for years, if indeed it has not been the best month ever known here. Leading houses are full of interior merchants, all of whom are buying liberally. The unusually large harvest and fair prices for grain no doubt account for prevailing activity, but Portland jobbers, in anticipation of a good season, made large and advantageous purchases, and made an effort—it might properly be called an organized effort—to wrest trade that had been drifting to San Francisco. In this they were successful beyond expectation, and the trade which started during the low freight and passenger rates in the days of the Great Republic opposition has now been checked. No small number of country dealers who have visited San Francisco regularly twice a year, after carefully comparing prices offered by traveling agents from the Bay city with those given by Portland houses, were convinced that no benefits would come from taking their trade away from Oregon, and bought here all lines in every department. Several prominent establishments have been compelled to work their employes until late at night to fill orders and some houses find the packing and shipping facilities too limited. The "boom" started early in the month and there are no evidences yet of its waning. Collections are better than for several seasons past and it is believed, if the supply of spot vessels were equal to two thirds of the wheat surplus, far more would close the season of 1881 and begin that of 1882 with clean scores.

Wheat.

Inasmuch as no public record is kept of sales at this port, no accurate statement can be made of the volume of wheat transactions, nor even approximated. Diligent inquiry shows that the week has been active in the way of numerous small sales, without marked transactions, and it may be recorded as an average for a dull season. No new features were developed, the market remaining steady. Quotations for No. 1 valley are $1 55@1 57½ per cental, with more transactions at the lower than the higher figure. Eastern Washington firm at 55@57c per bushel. We do not quote the Eastern Washington product at its value here because the great bulk of purchases are direct from farmers at so much per bushel delivered at shipping points, and do not include sacks.

The Oregon Railway and Navigation Company are bringing down eight hundred tons per day, about one-fourth of which is taken to Astoria for shipment, a part for direct export and a portion for San Francisco per steamships. Every steamer down takes what wheat she can carry, finishing her cargo at Astoria. The company makes a through rate from points on the railroad to San Francisco. Arrivals of wheat by the Oregon and California and Western Oregon railroads average five hundred tons per day. Warehouses on the line of both roads are full, and the demand for cars greatly exceeds the supply. Interior millers and grain dealers are seeking storage here, first, to secure more favorable terms for insurance; second, to be in position to secure advances in case of need, and of course to make room for lots daily coming in from the harvest field. The storage capacity of docks here is about 60,000 tons, and about half is already taken. At present rate of arrivals, storage will be at a premium in less than thirty days. All the warehouses on the upper Willamette are full, and on account of the low stage of water little can be moved.

Charters.

A nominal spot rate is 90 shillings for United Kingdom. Eleven vessels arrived this week, all except one chartered. An iron vessel to arrive this month is held at 92s 6d, 90 shillings having been refused. Arrivals during the week are: the Br bk Locket, 416 tons; Br bk Loch Doon, 780 tons; Br ship Derbyshire, 1163 tons; Fr bk Buenos Ayres, 649 tons; Br bk Argo, 562 tons; Br bk Harvest Home, 517 tons; Br bk Bankefield, 835 tons, and the American ships Oracle 1550 tons, and Saranac 1081 tons. The Alice Buck is reported outside the bar. The Argo, Glamorgans and Harvest Home have cargoes of coal; the Saranac and Alice Buck, iron for the O. R. & N. Co., and the Oracle, iron for the Northern Pacific. The remainder come in ballast.

Home Produce Market.

Flour is firm. There is a fair inquiry for oats. All cured meats are firm at quotations. Dried apples are somewhat higher, owing to reported short crop this fall. Butter is steady at old quotations. Eggs are in small supply and higher. Choice potatoes, in good order, are wanted. Choice green apples are in good demand at full prices. Butter is very firm at quotations given.

MARK LANE REPORT.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Mark Lane Express says the week's fine weather has greatly benefited agriculture, but it is altogether too late to alter the position of harvest in its relationship to the grain trade. Nearly everything offered is unfit to grind without foreign admixture. Prices of native wheat have not materially changed since Monday. A larger proportion of sales has been made for feeding purposes on this basis. Published rates range from 22s to 35s per quarter, and trade both in London and in the provinces closed decidedly weak for all home descriptions. Foreign breadstuffs are not quotably changed since Monday. The condition of a great bulk of native deliveries has created a demand for hard wheats, not anticipated months ago. These, therefore, have advanced 1@2s in the past fortnight. The week's supply of foreign wheat in London is 82,235 quarters, of which 37,764 quarters were American, and of foreign flour 12,009 sacks, the greater proportion American. Strong red wheat flours are now in much request at latest quotations, but weaker. Flours such as Californian and Australian are rather depressed. The price of maize was rather against buyers at the close of the week, being 29s 6d ex ship, which is an advance of 3d. The off coast market has lost its tone since Wednesday, Saturday's quotations forcing buyers. During the current week, about 25 wheat cargoes are due. The bulk of wheat and flour afloat is estimated at 720,000 quarters over that at the corresponding date last year. Saturday, buyers' offers of 29s 6d for maize cargoes were refused.

Barley—Market is firm with a good demand; sales 400 ks old coast feed, $1 35; 600 tons choice bay chevalier, $1 50; coast chevalier feed sold at $1 35.

Oats—Market is firm at the advance. Good to choice feed, $1 65@1 65.

Corn—Yellow small sold today at $1 50. The market is better supplied. Quote all kinds, $1 40@1 50.

Potatoes—Market is easier. Early rose quotable at $ @1 25; Petaluma and Tomales, $1 15@1 25; sweet, 87½c@$1.

Onions—Market is firmer. Quote at 85@90c.

Hides—Dry kip and calf, market lower, 18½@19c; wet salted light, 15½c.

Butter—Market firmer at full prices; fresh roll, 27½@30c; choice packed, 31@32c.

Eggs—There was a fair supply on the market to-day, but trade was slow; fresh California, 37@38c.

King of the Blood

Is not a "cure-all," it is a blood purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c. &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, Impurity of the Blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists. $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them A FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently, but same pronunciation.

KINNEY'S PATENT

TUBULAR FOUNTAIN FENCE

FOR CEMETERY LOTS.

The cut represents a single grave enclosure. The fence is constructed of tubular pipes, when the water serves not only as a fence, but vases are attached, in which flowers, plants and vines may be placed. These are supplied with a constant moisture caused by the evaporation of water from the pipes through the vases, which cause the fountain plants to grow luxuriantly for months without further attention. Nothing can be more appropriate for the last resting place to adorn and beautify the graves of departed loved ones. The fence is made in any size or shape desired. In granite or marble bases. For a full description for the dead, the cost of building, which is special is the flower basket is intended for the trailing of the vines, all of which is shown in the cut. Wherever this fence has been erected it attracts universal praise. Parties wishing to secure territory or the fences, put up will please apply to A. McKENZIE, Agent.
